

Neocase[™] Software Becomes a Workday Certified Solution Partner

Certified Integration of HR Service Delivery Solution with Workday Human Capital Management Enables More Efficient Employee Data Collection

Paris, France, February 13, 2017

Neocase Software, a Workday \(NYSE: WDAY\) software partner, today announced that it has achieved Workday Certified Solution Partner status. Neocase Software provides customers with a real-time, bidirectional integration that connects Workday Human Capital Management \(HCM\) with Neocase's HR solutions.

Workday HCM is a single system that enables organizations to make better decisions faster, gain operational visibility, prepare for future talent shifts, and build effective teams. Neocase provides HR service delivery solutions for new and developing service centers, mature shared service centers, and global business services.

With this certified integration, joint customers will be able to further improve employee experiences and increase service center productivity. For example, organizational and employee data changes made in Workday are automatically updated in real-time in Neocase. This enables service center staff to access updated, personalized employee records in Neocase's self-service portal when handling a case. Additionally, documents created or captured within the case management process are automatically posted to the employee's document file in Workday for convenient, centralized access.

"Partnering with Workday supports the value we bring to our customers," said Alain Ries, CEO, Neocase. "This certified integration enables joint customers to further streamline HR delivery processes across Workday and Neocase's systems, which decreases processing time and increases service center productivity and responsiveness."

"With this integration, we're able to remove data transfer delays," said Mircea Albeanu, Head of Human Resources Information System, HR shared services centre, Thales UK. "The real-time data synchronization between Workday HCM and Neocase's HR solutions results in a more personalized and productive experience that couldn't be achieved with legacy interfaces."
